Decorum And Civility Start At The Top

- National media attention
- Governing body sets the example that employees should want to follow
- Leadership and ethics go hand-in-hand
- How to bring out the best in our elected officials
Issues:

An individual Council member has received a complaint of harassment directly from an employee against his supervisor, and the Council member promises the employee to immediately retain a costly outside investigator and makes specific, promised outcomes, including that the employee can rest assured, the Council member will make sure that the “harassing” supervisor is dealt with handily.

PROBLEM?
City Council member received a social media post from an employee alleging disability discrimination against the Public Works Director.
A Council member has started increasingly using social media and has taken a liking to the “like” function, and is citing First Amendment Free Speech Rights that allows her to communicate on an internet-based social media platform without violating the governing body legal principles. The problem is the “like” involves something another Council member posted on a matter within the Council’s jurisdiction.

PROBLEM? SERIAL MEETING?
City Council member advised by City Attorney that the City Manager is accusing the Council member of retaliation based on free speech.
City Council member advised by City Manager that department head is accusing Council member of bullying and abusive behavior based on a single email the Council member sent him.
City Manager/department head have just been informed by Human Resources that an employee is accusing them of discrimination based on lawful off-duty use of cannabis.
Issues:

A Council member has involved herself directly in the job performance issues of an employee and wants copies of the employee’s personnel file to review.

PROBLEM?
Issues:

A Council member has started going directly to staff with voluminous requests for information, resulting in extra work for staff, staff not being able to complete assigned job duties, overtime, and complaints from staff that they are uncomfortable. PROBLEM?
You are the lead negotiator for the City. You are just about to present your last, best, and final proposal, and your Mayor meets individually with the rep on the other side of the table and advises she can get more than the deal you are about to put on the table.

PROBLEM?
Issues:

• At the dais, one of your Council members has started regularly elevating his voice, at times, described as yelling and even spitting, laced with a bit of profanity. The Council member asserts this is what he was elected to do – speak passionately on behalf of those who elected him, and he is exercising his free speech rights, which no one dare tread upon, and if you do, he will file an anti-slap motion.....
As a result, the neighboring Council member sitting next to him at the dais believes his conduct is a direct threat to her physical safety. She demands to have her seat moved away from him, a sergeant at arms present during every open and closed session, and that if he raises his voice again, she will call 911 and seek a temporary restraining order.

PROBLEM?

Role in Personnel Matters

City Council

• Stay out! If in = significant legal exposure.
• Stay within your legal lane:
  ▪ Jurisdiction = City Manager/City Attorney
  ▪ Do not act alone
    o Loss of legislative shield of immunity o Creates confusion – who is the boss? Slippery slope!
    o Creates legal liability for City and yourself individually
City Council – Stay in Your Lane cont.

- Admissions against interest
- Jeopardize the integrity of the employee discipline-appeal process
- Undermine City’s commend structure and hierarchy
- Invasion of Privacy
- Unfair Labor Practice Charge
- Retaliation
- Violation staff’s free speech rights
Role in Personnel Matters

• Acting individually in labor relations:
  ▪ Bad faith direct dealing
  ▪ Bad faith by-passing designated lead negotiators - Employees have designated representatives, and they are not Council members
  ▪ Undermining Council majority authority and direction
  ▪ Undermining negotiator’s credibility
City Council cont.

• Act only on matters within jurisdiction;
• And only at duly convened meetings;
• And the voice of one gives way to the voice of the majority.
Role in Personnel Matters

Ultimately, it is the City Manager, potentially in conjunction with Human Resources and/or Legal, who takes the lead and guides us through all personnel issues; let him lead and do not do anything that could be perceived as interference.
